Cold, remote, impersonal . . .

The old clock in the tower—quiet, indifferent, relentless—measured our passage, ticking away with tranquil beat our fleeting moments of elation and despair. While the world around us became concerned with bungling internationalism and when the spectre of military life shrouded every future—we of the so-called silent generation devoted a year preparing ourselves to face uncertainty. Often the days grew tedious leaving us with an apathetic feeling toward a world grown too complex.

Someday we'll reminisce of these hours of emotional existence and quip about problems that once appeared earth-shaking with importance. And perhaps we'll see again the old clock in the tower—cold, remote, impersonal—as we recall the little things about a year of college life—the things this book has tried to capture.

THE Anaga 1954

Despite an almost strangling budget and at times a very discouraging morale, we've managed to complete our 1954 Anaga. We like it — we hope you will too.

This has been a year of readjustment for Bradley and for its students as well. Not all the events were pleasant — and often we wondered if there was any justification for our many tribulations. But in the years ahead as we leaf these pages again, we'll forget the strife and conflicts to warmly recall some of the happiest moments of our lives.

Worn stairways, swinging doors, cement ashtrays . . .

B-Hall, as we have affectionately dubbed it, is a contrast. From without, it is a landmark — the remnants of a tradition that began with Bradley Academy, became Bradley Polytechnic, and finally blossomed into Bradley University. From within, it is a boldly painted, tired building, that lives on the spasmodic fluctuations of our ever-changing student body.

We have come to know Bradley Hall as a sentimental, romantic building that houses the classical realm of arts and sciences. But we also know it for the acrid odors in the basement, the long climb to classes on the fourth floor, and the oversized bird baths we used for ashtrays.

We walk down Institute to feel collegiate . . .

Thoughts of college are followed by visions of a scenic campus. But Bradley is different — and we are always conscious of it. Our campus is an architectural conglomerate crammed into six square blocks. There are no spacious lawns or sweeping vistas. A walk to class is a mere three-minute routine.

And yet, a midday stroll down Institute is exciting. It makes Bradley more complete, more aesthetic. At night, we often walk in silence, reluctant to disturb that strange nostalgic feeling we never try to explain. An armload of books seems lighter and saluting an RO officer is somewhat pleasant when we walk on Institute.

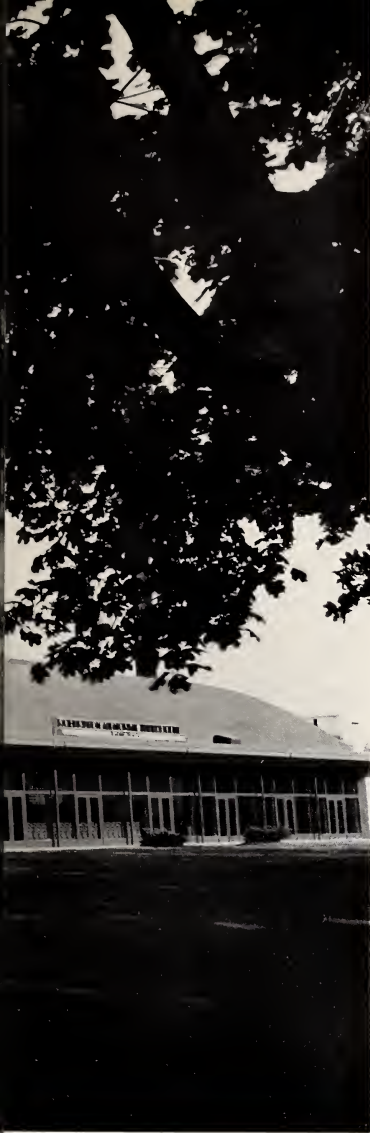

Fall and leaves; winter and mid-western slush; spring and fresh grass. This is our answer to Princeton, to Harvard — this is our campus and the essence of Bradley.

Ice shows, blood drives, and now and then basketball . . .

In our beloved fieldhouse, we see Peoria as we seldom do otherwise. Her apparent indifference becomes complete devotion and her attitude of disinterest becomes one of concern when we speak of basketball. For Peoria helped build our fieldhouse, our basketball, and all the wonderful things that go with it.

We usually watch from the bleachers . . .

School opened, and we thronged to convocation filled with scholastic determination. The year ended, and again we massed for Honors Day, fewer in number, less optimistic, but perhaps consoled by a theater-type seat.

Stately and serene, symbol of lost chapel tickets . . .

The proverbial core of student activities, Alumni Hall is a maze of doors, a confusing mechanism of co-ordination, a harbor for chapel credit complaints.

Cigarettes, politics, and paper-cup coffee . . .

With its raucous spatter of conversation, the Tepee is our inevitable gathering place. Professors discard their lecture formality, grad students expound their new-born theories, and underclassmen grope for an air of individuality, as party politics, Marilyn Monroe, and the price of coffee are reviewed.

Warm days, sunbathing, and lots of attention . . .

The unorthodox is standard in Harper Hall, where an occupant is not an individual unless she smokes in pajamas, occasionally swears, and prays for another panty raid.

Hot-plates and pizza pie . . .

Comie Hall has its quiet moments, but emphasis is never on solitude. Instead, smuggling food is the habitual past-time and 10:00 hours only encourage its practice.

Fire alarms and the 4th of July—every night . . .

The New Men's Dormitory is the melting pot for Bradley men, where study is nearly non-existent and sleep unconventional. Here, it is difficult to distinguish the adolescent from the academic, for reactions are uncontrolled, emotions unrestrained, and conduct thrives on firecrackers and false alarms.

Behind the scenes secretaries file data, instructors prepare tests, and janitors work late into the night to keep Bradley operating with efficient . . .

March 19, 1954

TO THE STUDENTS OF BRADLEY UNIVERSITY

On January 30, 1954 the Board of Trustees announced that Dr. Harold P. Rodes had accepted their offer to become the fifth President of Bradley University. The Board made this announcement with a feeling of satisfaction and of real accomplishment.

Dr. Rode's was the unanimous choice of all members of the Board and of the Faculty and Alumni Advisory Committees. He is one of the outstanding younger educators in the United States. He received his B. A. degree with highest honors from Dartmouth and his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from Yale.

His strong educational background and his knowledge of the problems of our private colleges and universities combined with his excellent administrative ability make him an ideal president for Bradley.

We have every reason to feel that under his leadership Bradley University will become a better and stronger university.

Sincerely yours

President
Board of Trustees

An empty office—a dust-filmed desk . . .

The throbbing persistent tempo of the President's office has been stilled for more than a year. An invading spirit of uneasy quiet settled over the room like a thin film of dust clouding the ceaseless efforts carried on elsewhere to keep our university running smoothly. The only indications of strain appeared as deep furrowed wrinkles on the brows of such men as Dr. Haussler and Dean Sipple, who held our faith through an era of uncertainty.

Now a spiritual dust cloth has brushed the furniture until once again it glows with a satin-like warmth. The tension has evaporated, the strain seems to be gone, and once more the door stands invitingly open. With the spirit of presidents from the past hopefully watching over our future—we anxiously await the presence of Dr. Harold P. Rodes.

Administration Officials

Brisk, erect, burdened—mentor in an uncertain era . . .

Many an approving glance has been cast on A. G. Haussler, well-dressed, distinguished, with greying hair and candid brown eyes. Vice-President of the University, "Frenchie", as he is affectionately called behind the scenes, strives diligently to set the University's course directly in the middle of the proverbial "straight and narrow". His office, well kept and tastefully decorated, reveals to even the casual observer the neat, well-ordered life that our Vice-President leads.

Father of our silent generation—aloof and forcefully academic . . .

Dr. Chester E. Sipple looks more like the mythical atomic scientist than Dean of the University. A rather shy, retiring gentleman, his elfin humor belies his endless industry as he tackles the myriad of problems simultaneously confronting him. His piercing eyes show immediate comprehension of any situation, no matter how complex, as he contemplates Bradley life from that rather harried yet intelligent countenance so symbolic of his position.

Looking almost like a student, Dean Leslie H. Tucker fulfills his obligations with the precision and grace of a champion athlete, while expressing the tact and camaraderie appropriate to his official status as Dean of Students.

An athletically inclined, sagacious gentleman nicknamed "Snow-Drift", Dean Orville Nothdruff carries on his duties as Registrar and Dean of Admissions with all the necessary aplomb to command the respect of all.

Dr. Leo G. Bent's ever-ready smile is a constant aid to students in the evolution of their college careers. His title, Director of the Office of Special Services, does not fully cover his intricate position as head of the guidance personnel.

Father Confessor to all his friends, Dr. D. E. Gorseline manages the University's Evening School with the same benign, self-confident air that is so apparent in his education day classes.

Victorian life is personified in Dean Olive B. White, who governs the women on campus—as well as all campus social affairs—with a steady hand clothed in the velvet glove of her smile.

An advocate of the “Dewey” educational system, C. W. Schroeder, Dean of Men, carries his interest in nature into his everyday work.

Bennett College

An electrical maze is the veritable existence of Dean Fred E. Dace of Bennett College. His intelligent guidance prepares his students for their entrance into the industrial and commercial fields.

College of Commerce

School of Art

Head of the School of Art, Dean Ernest Freed is the embodiment of the spirit of art in its surrealist, naturalistic, and romantic forms. His deep-set, serious eyes belie the humor beneath, while his creative genius continues to amaze us.

College of Engineering

Engineering — complexity — reality. These words are synonymous with Dean Russell Gibbs. Dean Gibbs lives for that future day when his students can leave antiquated Holmes Hall forever for the wonderland of the new engineering building. The department that built Bradley Polytechnic is coming back into its own.

School of Music

Dean of the School of Music, Kenneth V. Kincheloe is a fastidious man who seemingly dwells in a mystical world of musical fantasia. Removed from the mundane, he nonetheless reveals a devoted interest in his music classes.

College of Liberal Arts & Sciences

The Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences is a grandfatherly looking man with a soft, quiet manner and exceptionally friendly nature — Dean Arthur E. Gault.

Peoria College

Peoria College is managed with the same personable air that pervades its Dean — Wilbur W. Grimm. Its two-year program offers a degree that is useful to the many students entering professional schools.

Graduate School

The Dean of the Graduate School is widely known — Dr. Raymond Lepley. With deep understanding, he philosophically guides graduate students in their quest for the “Holy Grail” of knowledge.

. . . to processional confusion

Student government, honoraries, committees, publications, concerts, and an occasional night at the Varsity beckon to those of us who crave . . .

ACTIVITIES

Government

A Harvard appearing man—in levis. The Eastern look of distinction conceals the warm, friendly personality of President Jack Gillespie.

Student Council

Proofreading student directories, painting curbs, El J.'s face turning a brilliant red, muffled "ayes" and "nays" heard amid the noise of council members eating barbeques and gulping milk—this is your Student Council.

This year the council launched the book exchange which enabled students to buy books at low prices. The biggest project for the year was the publishing of a student directory. The directory contained names, home addresses, and Peoria phone numbers of Bradley's faculty and students. School elections, traffic safety, and the Service Trophy are also projects of the council. When spring rolls around, the gala Campus Carnival is another annual project of the group, whose advisors are Dean Tucker, El J. Ritter, and Dr. Norton.

Seated in a weekly meeting are: Peggy Hurst, Mary Wade, Lois Bacon, Marion Farris, E. J. Ritter, Gloria Suedden, Jim Heiple, Ann Gibson, Phil Rastatter, Bob Hodgson, Jim Carius, Claire Craggs, Dr. L. Norton, Jack Crebs, Jo Abernathy, Merle Aschenbrenner, Mary Wellington.

Board of Control

Bradley's Board of Control attempts to determine the policies and direct the staffs of student publications. Composed of seven members, one of their most important tasks is the appointment of the editors and business manager for the ANAGA and the SCOUT.

Easing the aches and pains of student publication staffs is problem enough for any group. The ticklish job of proportioning insufficient funds to the yearbook and newspaper requires cautious handling—this year's Board was adequately cautious.

As president of the Board, Pete Koukos maintains austere diplomacy with a satirical touch.

Row 1: William Buhrman, Jack Crebs, Neil Tonsley, Grant Kinney, Milton Hamberg.
 Row 2: Charles Gagnier, Pete Bent, Don Maisel, John Williams, Robins Hawthorne, E. J. Ritter, H. Eugene Dybvig, Faculty Advisor.

Blonde and Iowan, Bill McKinley coordinates Bradley fraternities with impassive self-confidence.

Interfraternity Council

"The way you can tell a real fraternity man, sloppy-joe clothes and a beer in his hand"—and so the song goes. In IFC, however, you can tell him by his endeavor to improve fraternity relationships. Around Christmas he is known for his acts of benevolence as he plays Santa Claus to little orphans. As second semester begins to lull, he turns to frolic and plans the gala IFC dance. Spring comes and he is in a whirl of planning Chariot races, picnics, and heartwarming serenades to convalescent homes. All through the year he is a scholar, an athlete, and a "quench-room socialite."

Panhellenic Council

Back to school a week early and between semester planning are the rushing woes of the sorority girl. However, after a week of hash sessions, fixed smiles, and choking on "Forty Cups of Tea," the result is some terrific pledges and Operation Rush proves worthwhile.

Panhellenic is the voice of the sorority five. Whether it be a dance, scholarship banquet, sorority sing, or assisting a coed who is seeking affiliation, members of the National Panhellenic spare no efforts.

Louise Sobray is the capable and coldly sincere leader of the Panhellenic Council.

Inter-faith Council

To help insure religious interest on campus, two representatives of each faith comprise this council. Their activities include an annual holiday presentation of "The Christmas Carol" and Religions Emphasis Week in the spring.

Row 2: Larry Miller, Dr. E. Emme, Faculty Advisor, Augustus Kwabi, Beverly Barkey, Richard Walker, Harold Mazurek, James Erwin.

Row 3: Larry Edler, Paul Bosse, Warren Willems, Lawrence Grant, John Scherer, John Mihok, Walter Babcock.

Men's Dormitory Council

Imagine four hundred men "baching it" together! The dorm "crab" net deals with the various and sundry problems that arise from the crazy mixed-up mail to the showers, either freezing or boiling. The council serves as an excellent sorting group in guiding the policies of their haven away from home.

Associated Women Students

Memberships in the Associated Women Students Board are held by representatives from each of the dorms and sorority houses. Last year they squeezed a mere $182 out of Bradley students in a fund-raising campaign for charity.

Row 1: Barbara Denham, Lois Bacon, Carole Petrie, Lois Anderson.

Campus Carnival Committee

With the wave of a magic wand, plus a charitable spirit topped by an air of compulsion, the Fieldhouse is converted into a "midget midway." Proceeds are donated to welfare organizations by Student Council members who head the committee.

Freshman-Sophomore Officers

Informality takes preference over "Robert's Rules of Orders" during freshman and sophomore class meetings. The business and headaches of the two classes are capably administered by their officers as they occasionally sponsor dances and social events.

Row 1: James Chandler, Treas., Donald Brian, Vice-Pres., Robert Hodgson, Pres., Sandra Schwartzbeck, Secy.
Row 2: Theresa Williams, Secy., Ronald Stack, Pres., Kent Mohr, Vice-Pres., Robert Jacobus, Treas.

1953 Homecoming Committee

Wee late hours growing later, carefully formulated plans going awry, and frayed nerves and weary minds—the general rule of any meeting of this committee. But this year proved the exception, for everything ran so smoothly that perhaps the biggest worry was the lack of worry! The "Bradley On Parade" Homecoming was just short of stupendous, due to a well selected steering group plus wise counseling from faculty advisor, Chet Zebell.

Row 1: Nancy Herriman, James Huhta, Leonard Costa, Mary Wellington.
Row 2: Mary Carrigan, Lois Comstock, Neil Tousley, Dorothy Rosenbaum, Betty Herrelson.
Row 3: George Schuster, William Buhrman, Willis Tribler, Jack Crebs, Grant Kinney.

As assistant editor, Mary Wellington was proficient at making the book attractive—in more ways than one.

Jack Milne, our editor, bears the marks of a yearbook complex—too many details, too little time, and too much assumed importance.

Yearbook photographers all claim to be artists and practice being unpredictably temperamental.

Publications

Often eccentric and noticeably odd, the ANAGA staff delights in mugging for photographers. Their unique dispositions are reflected on every page of this book.

Deadlines, budgets, and bouquets of onions . . .

Your 1954 ANAGA is a combination of a year's planning, a myriad of copy and pictures, and more than a few shattered nerves. This book contains our impressions of Bradley—the Bradley we see from day to day. We've handed out a few bouquets and an equal number of onions, but throughout we've tried to remain honest, sincere, and objective.

As you read our black and white monstrosity, that hole in the wall we call an office will be vacant. The publications building will no longer smell of our smoke and coffee and pizza pie. And as you turn each page, our weary staff will be watching you—and pondering your reactions.

To us, this book is more than a college annual. It moves and breathes and even speaks. And it will forever repeat, at least to us, the story of deadlines, budgets, and occasional words of praise.

An acrobat, a contortionist, and even a photographer of some merit, Gil Gordon intensely served as chief photog for Bradley publications. His creative genius speaks for itself in this book.

"Chief" Pat McAdams, hindered by a bi-weekly publication, turned out a creditable college newspaper, with the aid of a rejuvenated journalism department.

Looking more like the "whiffenpoof chorus," our predominately male Scout staff spends a lot of time talking.

Scurrying helter-skelter across campus in the wake of a soft autumn breeze with an impregnable steel fence halting its passage, the Scout symbolizes the lives of many Bradley students who drift their ways through our alma-mater.

Perplexed with a nightmare of advertising copy, Bob Pratt tries to console himself as business manager of our penniless publications.

Ghoulish apparitions and dirt-fogged windows . . .

Amid the incessant chattering of typewriters and out of the dizzy heights of free publicity and stacks of news, the Bradley SCOUT emerges every other week.

With the day of publication the staff is found recuperating from their biweekly Monday night hangovers. Hangovers caused by pouring through mountains of complaints and advertising until the bleary-eyed and dissipated news hounds are seeing ghoulish apparitions of Board of Control members peering through dirt-fogged windows.

All is not no-doze and aspirin, however, as many fun-filled minutes are gleaned from the night's activity. It's these periods of mirth and the rush of last minute deadlines that get into these journalists' blood and are jotted down forever in their diary of memories.

Music

The University Choir

Tours and the drudgery of practice occasionally broken by customary midnight parties are the lot of our sturdy choir members. Perhaps they will not remember their television and radio appearances, but they will always cherish their half hour credits. Their minor goals are performance and promotion of public relations, while their major ideals are new choir robes, more tenors for their annual Christmas Concert, and, of course, more parties.

Eloquent speeches disguise the good-natured qualities of jumping George Muns, choir director.

The University Band

Their highly unpublicized appearances begin with opening convocations and are followed by strenuous marches and clever formations at the Peoria Stadium during the football season. As basketball takes its place in the sports world, our band follows along in the stream of excitement by offering peppy marches and dreamy songs to lure our basketball fans into their happy moods. With the presentation of their annual spring concert, band members complete their year of fun and music-making despite the lack of subsidies.

Lawrence Fogelberg directs the University Band with the physical exuberance of a P.E. major.

Row 2: Peter Koukos, Alan Lisle, Robert Mathis, Jack Milne, Richard Nelson, Willis Tribler, Joseph Zaba.

Omicron Delta Kappa

Ask any freshman what Omicron Delta Kappa is and you're apt to get this response: "Oh, that's the circle in front of Bradley Hall — forbidden ground for us." However, this isn't all, for ODK is a National Leadership Honor Society for men who become known on campus. Character, scholarship, leadership, and service in campus life serve as a basis for membership. Headed by Bill Boege, ODK strives for closer-knit faculty and student relationships.

Wakapa

Not to be over-shadowed by the industrious men of ODK, and in keeping with the "equal rights of women," our seniors have their own recognition society, Wakapa. Qualifications, comparable to those of ODK, include leadership, service, activities, and an over-all six point average. With Jody Rahn at the helm, Wakapa serves the school by entertaining the freshmen during Orientation Week.

Federation of Scholars

Dean White and Dean Sipple act as advisors for 182 members of the Federation of Scholars who receive the honor by maintaining a 6.0 overall grade average.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Bradley women, who, with hard work, luck, or both, have maintained a seven point as freshmen, are eligible for membership in the national society of Alpha Lambda Delta. Activities include serving as hostesses during Freshman Week and working on projects with other honoraries. Bonnie Sherwood directs them as president.

Phi Eta Sigma

Bradley's freshman male populace has its scholastic organization well under control as they strive to hold their seven point averages throughout their collegiate years. Walter Schuett led the group in entertaining the freshmen during Registration Week and distributing pamphlets on "How to Study."

Chimes

A calendar full of activities and a consistently high scholastic average are some of the qualifications of Chimes members. Junior women with such characteristics are elected to this national honorary.

AFROTC

Ribbons, medals, and an antagonistic attitude appear every Thursday when our "junior bird-boys" don their coats of blue and storm the campus.

Vets, 4-F's, and an ROTC unit . . .

Every American college student must realistically face the future, but campus life and weekend excitement seldom conform to the sobriety of service years. Bradley is not unlike other universities — we have our vets, our 4-F's, and an ROTC unit. Our Air Force detachment carries the distinction of being one of the finest units in the nation — despite the groans and gripes of ninety percent of the cadets.

Completing his fourth and final year as PAS&T, Colonel Woodrow B. Wilnot commands the most controversial group on campus.

Comprising the cadet staff are Eugene Askenasy, Cadet Commanding Officer, and deputies John Dietz, Linus Heinz, and Charley Gillespie.

Stalag 17, bigger TGIF's . . .

Promotion boards, fieldhouse tests, and too many "command" performances envelop the lives of AFROTC cadets. Thursdays are drill days and the rest of the campus takes a back seat while the boys in blue pass in review. Tagged Stalag 17, the gray building behind the gym is headquarters for BU militarists and serves to stimulate officer training, classroom attendance, and bigger TGIF parties.

More stripes, crossed swords, and cocktail hours feature the R O.'s annual Military Ball.

Dancing and two times more around the track . . .

A decorated quonset hut and a big-name orchestra make for a pleasant evening of dancing, smoking, and talking. Blue uniforms and graceful girls swaying on darkened dance floors will long be remembered during our militaristic futures, as well as demerits, A.P.'s, and "two times more around the track."

In Tribute

No tradition finer—no greater asset . . .

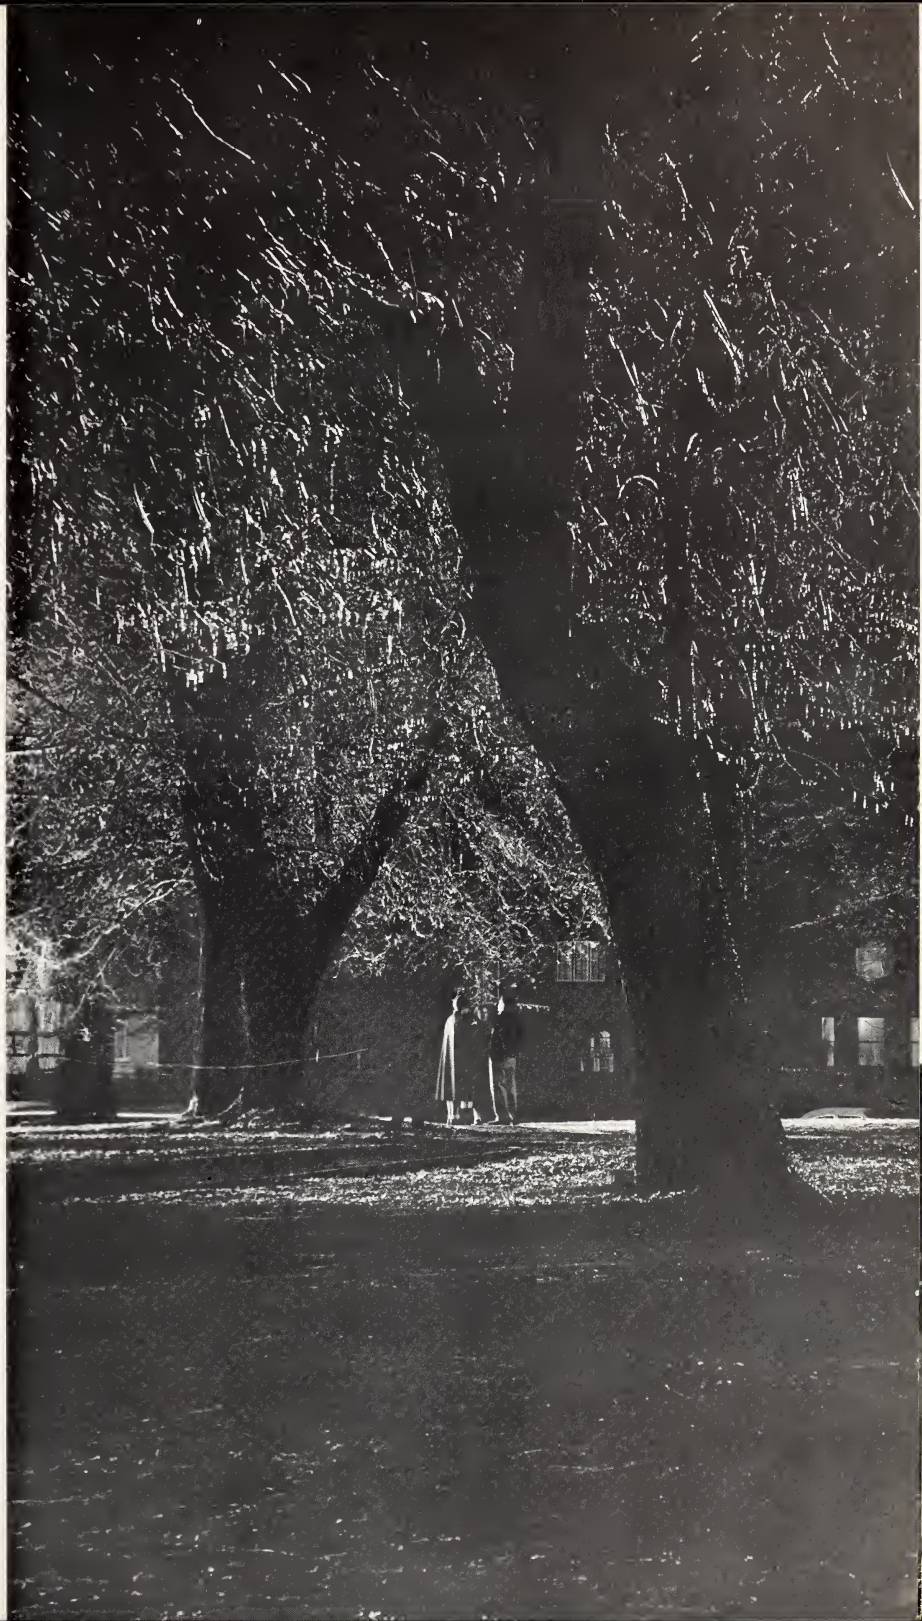

Amid ice-covered trees, cold buildings, and chilling wintry blasts of bone penetrating Illinois air, we Bradley students stand as a circle of warmth.

Our discussions mirthfully drift from our University and its cultural and intellectual advantages to our architectural monuments and unblemished sacred traditions. Together, we have found the ability to laugh at our shortcomings, to recognize our faults, and to become better individuals in spite of them.

The intimate discussions, the effervescent greetings on campus, and the personal note in classes draw us harmoniously together in feeling and thought and represent the intangible aura that pervades Bradley — friendliness.

Here we don't have to search for friends — they are easily acquired; we don't have to be politicians to keep them — they are faithful; and we don't need a hardened shell for protection — friendliness breeds security. What is college without discussions. What is a campus without cordiality. What is life without companionship.

Yes, our Bradley is a friendly school, and what is more it must continue to be so. There may be little we can do to promote friendliness — but there is much we can do to perpetuate it.

Football miseries, a deflated scholarship program, and our unexpected return to national basketball prominence mark an eventful year in Bradley . . .

ATHLETICS

Athletic policies

and bow ties . . .

Worry-wart, guiding light, and tradition. Art Bergstrom, B.U. Athletic Director, is a composite of all these personalities and maybe more. We hope the belated exoneration of the boys in the sweatshirts will give Art enough reason to turn on the smile that belongs above that bow-tie.

Odors in the B Club lounge . . .

To the freshman, a clean towel. To the wounded Brave, a band-aid. The fumes of wintergreen and the pungent odor of perspiration swallow the smell of new polish on a row of football shoes. Piles of athletic equipment dwarf the housekeeper of Bradley's sporting supply room, dispensary, and B club lounge.

Quartermaster and nursemaid to the Braves, Carl Grose attends to the details behind the scene.

Football

Some called it a "head-in-hands" season—we called it murder.

Most of us only knew our new coach Steve Sueic as the guy who never looked at those empty bleachers. Here's what the team saw Monday through Friday.

Row 1: Gene Waller, Ralph Barclay, John Deininger, Gordon Busse, Wayne Cheramy, Lawrence Miller, Donald Seitzberg.
 Row 2: Donald Joos, Duane Lovestrand, James Seibert, Earl Schmidt, Chester Zielinski, Robert Mundelius, Don Allison, Jack Potter.
 Row 3: Bernard Penn, Allan Marr, Donald Stamp, Richard Richardson, Drea Hast, Franklin Goza, John Beck, David Shelmon, Robert Webb.
 Row 4: Charles Larson, Coach; William Heller, Ronald Compratt, James Hawthorne, Dennis Anderson, James Piletic, Donald Heins, Theodore Loomis, George Boyle.

Switching positions faster than a Gillette, Waller's worth soared.

With all that tape we didn't see enough of our general, Stamp.

Cast after a fireplug, Cheramy doused plenty of opposition runners.

Spirit that lost its way . . .

We didn't have to worry about getting a good seat at the football game. Our apathetic student body's attitude towards the hapless Braves reached a feeble peak at Davenport when the old college spirit momentarily burst into flame in the form of a post-game riot. Sometimes we wonder if these gloomy knots of guys and gals in the barren stadium were the same as the clapping, whooping throngs that would soon come out of hibernation to fill Robertson Memorial Fieldhouse. The traditional spirit that we read about in the B-Book has lost some of its fervor of the past. We might say it lost its way completely last fall.

The biggest throngs of the season were to be seen on rainy days—if we counted the reflected distortions in the water-soaked track.

Big league schedules and mummy tape . . .

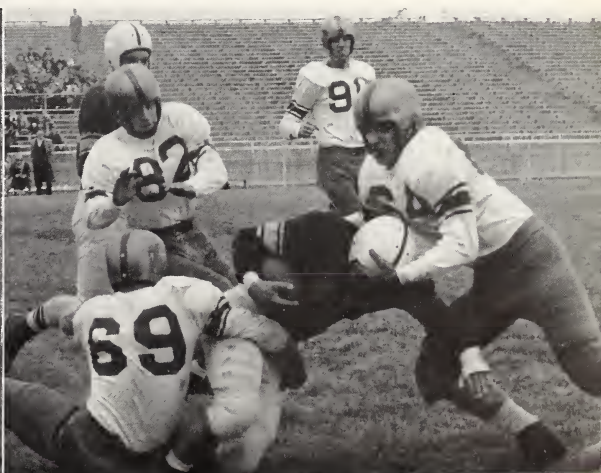

After an opening game victory, Steve's men soon forgot the scent of the victor's garlands with seven losses to grid machines from Wichita and Wayne, so-so teams like Bowling Green, Toledo, and Drake, and down-right stinkers at St. Ambrose.

Playing against schools that look with more favor upon athletes than does our scholarship committee, the Braves began to wear more tape than King Tut's mummy.

The big league schedule proved too rough for our ambitions but minor league squad.

There's a slogan that has found its way into many locker rooms around the country. "When the scorer writes your record in His book up above, He cares not if you won or lost, but how you played the game." We hope He also asks Bradley's gridders who arranged the brutal schedule that faced our amateurs in 1953.

Take two photographers and 60 minutes of action at the stadium. We couldn't figure the odds against this happening either.

Butterflies and basketball . . .

The "old college spirit" checked into Bradley's cheerin' section last December. A little tardy again this year, it didn't seem the same as the snake-dancing spirit of several years ago or like the cogent support of the "Beardless Braves." But still, as we stand in the darkened fieldhouse and watch the color guard hoist our Flag to the dusty skeleton of our quonset, we share with the frosh an intangible gnawing somewhere below our fraternity pins. A case of "butterflies" you say? We prefer to think of it as that "good old college spirit."

A twinkling star in the coaching heavens, Forddy Anderson successfully dodged the meteors of hostile attacks from some "Bradley Boosters" with a winning team and an NCAA bid for the Braves.

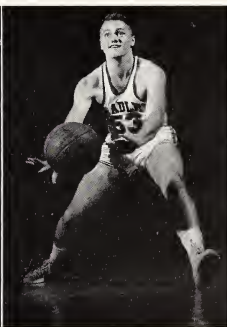

Ed King — team player, ball hawk, hustler.

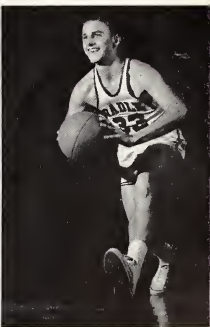

Estergard leaves the biggest shoes to fill.

Big Pete to friends —trouble to opponents.

The "quiet man" of the Braves—John Kent.

Zealously guarded, Carney still scored.

Row 1: John Kent, Donald Matthews, Robert Carney, Lee O'Connell, Lee Utt, Ronald Johnson, Harvey Babetch, Charles Boston.

The house is in order—an era ends . . .

Like the amateur magician who bisected a few young lasses during his apprenticeship, our Braves misused once in awhile as Forddy groomed the squad for a try at some NCAA hardware. But our court magicians stopped the shows at Stillwater and Kansas City. Admiring our second place trophy and relishing a national rating of 7th, we patted each other on the back and confirmed our faith in the team. Then New Orleans beckoned our "Cinderella" five with an engraved invitation to next year's Sugar Bowl. Amid the jubilation, a voice in the Fieldhouse told a few friends, "Now the house is in order". Closing the door on another era of Bradley basketball, Forrest Anderson transferred his credits to Michigan State's Department of Athletics.

"Kin I have a shot too, guys?"
The Lilliputian Braves' mascot is Freddie King, and he's the envy of the town.

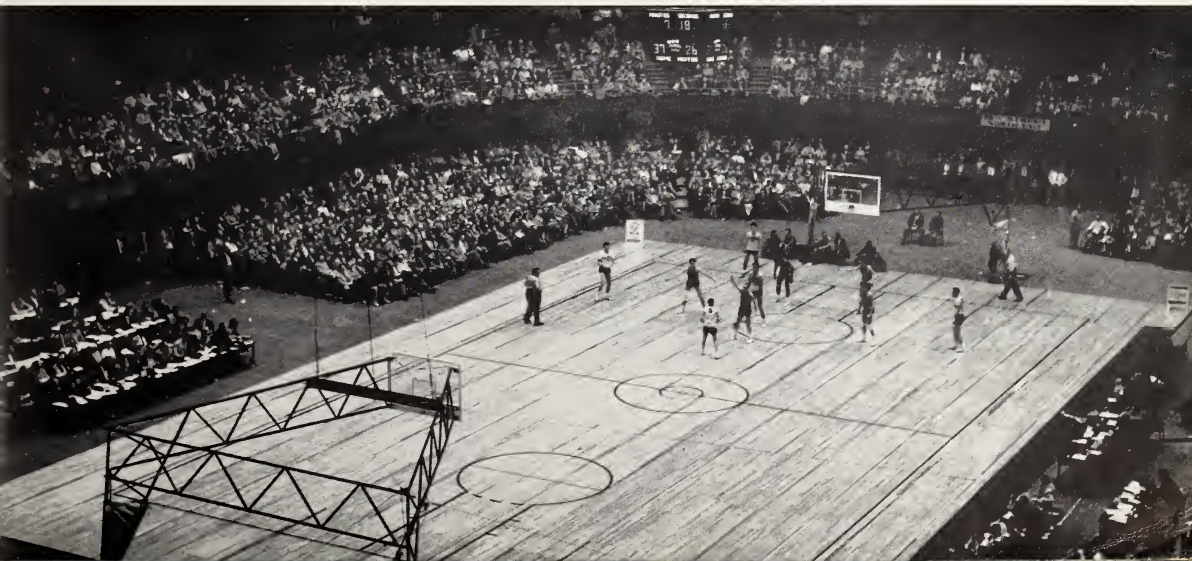

Reserve a place in Bradley's Hall of Fame for Bob Carney; NCAA scoring king, regional MVP, and new Brave record holder.

Renaissance after a dark age . . .

A story that began three years ago in a New York district court finally reached its climax this March when the Braves carved up the NCAA tournament cake for second place honors. It's no secret that being able to meet the best in the land in tournament play is a dream we have all hoped would materialize for Bradley University. Now that the air is cleared of that foul word "fix", the sporting world will forget Bradley's dark ages and look forward to our team's Renaissance on the tournament hardwood.

Old grads, Bradleyites, and Peorians—nearly 2000 strong—stormed into Kansas City's Civic Auditorium to cheer for the Braves and bring home a second place trophy.

The Crimson Tide receives considerable attention by Carney and Ess, but it's 'Bama's ball and 'Bama's game, 63 to 61.

Athletics isn't the only fieldhouse show. We have chapels; we have blood donations. Evidence of the myriad of activities within our hangar shows a scene from an original ballet staged on the fieldhouse planking. Choreography by the eminent F. Anderson.

Neglected books, empty classes, and traffic snarls . . .

The missing faces in the night classes, the untenanted proctors' rooms in the Men's Dorm, the snarl of traffic on the West Bluff tell us just as surely as the newspaper that the Braves are putting on a show at the Fieldhouse tonight. We cease our pretense of study, scrounge fifty cents for a glass of lager, and head for "Forddy's Fortress."

Rebounding brings many an un-called foul under the backboards and many a jeer from the crowd.

Easy, boys, this is basketball, not volleyball. Aw heck, they gotta learn sometime.

Sparse crowds and sporadic performances . . .

Sporadic performances marked the freshman season as occasional displays of hardwood artistry were offset by frequent lapses of ineptness. No Behnkes, Carneys, or Esterhards were counted among their number though several twenty-point tallies were recorded by our stars of tomorrow. As the season progressed, the fans became more aware of these hustling cagers who proudly wore the garb of the famous Braves and with whom rests the future of Bradley basketball.

"But, coach, I didn't think he could jump so high." We hope the frosh won't expect to have as sympathetic a listener next fall.

Sweatsuits and liniment . . .

Track a harbinger of spring? Not so, say the young aspirants of Bradley's cinder squad. We see the sweatsuited runners picking their route over the snow patches on the oval and begin to realize how much work these men must do to be able to don the colors of our school and run before a handful of spectators who are waiting for tomorrow's baseball game. We wonder if our student body will come to life this spring in time to get a good seat for a couple of our home track shows. Some of the meets may even be as exciting as the annual Interfraternity hassle.

Now a professional griddier, "Rocket" Ray Ramsey finds it more profitable to work and play at the same time.

Richardson's future in the high jump pit promises to keep the Braves going up for sometime.

Billed as an added attraction . . .

Piles of sweatclothes lying on the infield; the misplaced report of a starter's gun; the vacant starting blocks; a limpid piece of string at the foot of a stopwatch. An ancient sport is reincarnated before our casual glance. We sit with the politicians and scholars of Athens, the soldiers and vestal virgins of Rome. We watch the races that thrilled people of centuries ago. But are we cognizant of the history of the spring sport? Most of us don't know how they score the points for third place. Whether these men run for fun or glory, we wonder why they have to be billed as an added attraction at a baseball game.

Go to your marks—get set—chiseled muscles, toned to perfection, flex for the dash to the wire. The gun cracks. The grunt of the start. Somebody jumped the gun.

The race can't be that interesting. We'd better notify the NCAA that these officials spend their time gazing at the sunset, or perhaps at one of the Bradley campus queens. No, it must be the sunset.

The fervor of rivalry masks the spirit of mighty mite, Ken Musial.

Practice on winter afternoons is Jim Allen's price for winning form.

Dean Smith, distance vagabond, doesn't look happy despite his lead.

Baseball—1953

We watched Bob Howerter hustle his way to Bradley's Most Valuable Player Award on the hilltop diamond aggregation.

"Blood and Guts" to some, "Coach" and Mr. Schrall to others. We all know we'd better disappear when this expression arrives.

- Row 1: Loren Dodd, Bob Manning, Jim Kerr, Jim Stanczak, Bob Webb, Robert Brasher, Cliff Lothery, Roger King.

This scene, almost a stereotype of the baseball sport, still gives us that same thrill that comes when a pitcher's offering is clobbered into the center field pastures, especially if the young man steaming around the bases is wearing the red and white of Bradley University.

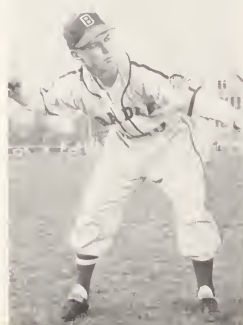

Not the biggest and perhaps not the best, but Joe Frank was always steady.

Dealing from the port-side, Metzger's fast one claimed the chips.

Glove-man or wood-man, Manning handled shortstop with finesse.

Gridder or diamond ace, Corky Robertson won honors in both.

Soda and a poor man's date . . .

The thump of baseballs into leather disrupts the afternoon lectures on those spring days when the Braves play host to some of the Midwest's top diamond squads. Couples drift across Institute to take advantage of a chance for a poor man's date; footballers hustle the soft drink concession; the amalgam of college talk varies from the forthcoming dances to college deferment tests — all this we await each winter when we look at those empty bleachers, the cold ground that will soon feel the spikes of another baseball season at Bradley.

The problem of conditioning, vital to Bradley's diamond success, caused Leo's ulcer to work overtime at the rate prescribed by the NCAA for non-scholarship teams.

Baseball pix are either taken at home plate or out by that base behind the hill. We couldn't get our shortstop to carry a Brownie so we had to stay close to home and hope for action.

Row 1: Ron Guariglia, Don Guariglia, Bob Carney, Coach Don Ashley.
Row 2: Walt Durdle, Bud Whitfield, Tom Heuweg.

A coach, a friend, a golfing partner—Don Ashley was there to collect the scorecards.

Dubs and course records . . .

Record smashing and disgruntling best describe the 1953 Bradley golf season. Record smashing in that a number of new course marks were established — disgruntling because the familiar hooks and slices were always evident despite the low scores and numerous victories.

Golf—1953

Cross Country

Hardly harriers to some . . .

A small knot of officials, bundled in overcoats and mufflers, stand with their hands in their pockets as they wait for the straggling column of thinly clad harriers to pad over the last yards of Bradley's cross country course. So these are the fellows who actually like to run up and down hill and dale on cold fall afternoons, clad only in their undies. Coach Larson's runners meet squads from several big-name schools with middling success. We don't agree with those who, after perusing the team's record, changed the phrase, "hardy harriers," to read "hardly harriers."

And below, we see the autumn runners beginning their long practice session. It must be the start. They're all together and they're smiling.

Could this be a posed portrait? Coach Larson, a newcomer at Bradley, proves a very willing model for the Anaga.

Swimming

Clockwise: William Halsey, Ned Flesher, Mgr. Norman Geyer, David Brim, Richard Cheng, Ronald McGauvran, Richard Hague, David Tucker, Monroe Obendhoff, Richard Fritze, Jack Franklin.

Center: Richard Baggott, Carlton Baker.

Bradley's distance man, durable Dick Fritze, comes out of a turn in Bradley's bathtub.

Co-ed nights are more fun . . .

Suffering from the freshman rule, ineligibility of transfer students, draft, and a small turnout, the Bradley tanksters could do little but quench their thirst. Steve Sueic in his first year as swimming coach had good material, but too little of it. Result: 1-7 record.

Coach Steve Sueic seems determined that there will be no more 1-7 seasons.

Tennis—1953

Whether masterminding backcourt shots or tournament strategy, Leslie Tucker's quiet personality proves that nice guys can be good coaches too.

Playing often on municipal courts, the Braves netmen stroked their way through opposition that brought major competition to Bradley.

Unsung participation . . .

Eclipsed in the shadows of baseball and track, we hardly remember the consistent winning seasons by Brave netters under the tutelage of their academic mentor, the Dean. Never rattled by noisy crowds, Bradley tennis remains another of our university's unsung activities that maintains the name—Bradley—in the collegiate world.

Row 1: Earl Rossman, Richard Siebert, John Clarno
Row 2: David Markin, Richard Goelzer, Wayne Steinke

Intramural Athletics

Characterized by a quick smile and a ready "no," Dutch Meinen handles our Bradley I-M program.

Enjoyed by a few . . .

The would-be Leon Harts, Frank Sedgmans, Gorgeous Georges, and Ben Hogans of our Bradley campus occasionally flaunt themselves through a flourish of unorganized competition. Although lacking in student interest, intramural basketball and softball provide athletic release for thirty-two basketball teams and eight softball squads. A few enjoy—but the multitudes miss—the competitiveness that the intramural program offers.

Maintaining a program of eleven different sports, our ancient gym and the New Men's Dorm foster the athletic desires of those who compete.

Interfraternity Athletics

Protests, fines, discords . . .

Governing the Greek sports competition for the first time was a perplexing problem for the Interfraternity Sports Council. Headed by the vice-president of the IFC and composed of athletic chairmen from all eleven fraternities, the newly organized group had more than a few problems. The inexperienced sports co-ordinators found the year highlighted by protests, fines, and competitive discords as well as the usual keen competition, repeat victors, and new champions.

Battling cold gyms and unfavorable school co-operation, the IF Sports Council found difficulty in its first venture at self-control.

Members of the Interfraternity Sports Council are:
Row 1: Robert Gamer, Secy.; William Buhrman, Chm.;
Ronald McGauvran, Treas.
Row 2: William Threadgill, Ralph Mueller, Robert Augsburger, James Barton, Jerry Heiman.

White shorts and gawking men . . .

Athletics, long a traditional domain of the collegiate male, finds the girls of today on the playing field from September to June through the efforts of Bradley's Women's Recreational Association. We recall the enthusiasm of the neophyte Robin Hoods on North Field and the resulting peril to professors' hats and Alumni Hall windows.

Sternly academic, Dr. Phebe Scott directs the women's physical education programs.

Members of the Bradley WRA Board are:
Row 1: Carol Metcalf, Pat Sternberg, Shirley Stever, Sue Thrig.
Row 2: Marilyn Flynn, JoAnne Hewitt, Monica Green, Georgia Cutler, Miss Hull, Lila Firnhaber.

A penny for your thoughts. We'd guess Mrs. Stegner is reflecting on European tours, fire alarms, and perhaps a new concept for Orchesis.

Leotards and cold feet . . .

Orchesis, a study in neoteric dances and knit costumes, has been cultivated into a permanent part of our extra-curricular activities for Bradley coeds. Exclusive participation whets the appetites of many applicants. Selection to Orchesis is a distinct honor for the talented few.

Homecoming and carnivals, house parties and weekend excitement, all provide enthusiasm for college life—enthusiasm we reflect in . . .

FEATURES

A planned collegiate look and unstudied innocence . . .

The fall debut of sociability is Freshman Week. With the new year come new interests—from the rush for Freshman girls to the much sought after elevator in B Hall—the decision of a green beanie or a mohawk hair-cut—the bright, expectant look of naive minds culminating in the freshman circus.

Registration—graveyard of grade points . . .

Confusion reigns as king when the peach-fuzzed high school stalwarts move into our wondrous world filled with chaotic frustration. A new-styled topper, thousands of cards to fill out, and the unmatched horror of new faces wherever one goes turn registration into a veritable "Pit and Pendulum." The upper classman doesn't have this fearful ordeal to face for he simply saunters through the graveyard of grade points with an understanding smile as he fills his schedule with self-assumed dignity.

Planning to petition or admiring a new face: he's probably remembering to schedule free Friday afternoons!

Rush literally, completely consumes fraternity affiliates. Chiseled smiles—hearty handshakes—mountains of cigarettes—ultimately ending in a pledge.

Interviews, TV shows, and fraternity backing . . .

Homecoming

Miss Mary Wellington, vivacious 1953 Homecoming Queen, receives honors from Papoose Terry Zebell. Her two attendants are Merle Aschenbrenner and Nancy Herriman. Pictured with the Queen and her attendants are the court of four princesses who are: Marlyn Sitton, Peggy Hurst, Barbara Krause, and Connie King.

A few of us were unsophisticated enough to see the game. The scoreboard tells us the repetitious story of our unsupported team.

Intoxicating success . . .

Homecoming is here. We forget those childish things—books—and burn away the midnight oil with sweat and anticipation. Alumni converge on the campus to see our one all-out effort. We are rewarded with either heartbreak or intoxicating success as the judges terminate the week-end with the earthshaking decisions we await. Only then do we realize the frivolous festivities are secondary to the primary purpose of college—Education.

Alumni stunt show—the young in heart return to make their presence felt—we laughed with them.

Blood, sweat, and beers . . .

Poking paper and new romances occupy our work filled hours with enough trivial affairs to complete a volume. The aftermath revealed our ridiculous requisitions.

The clock chimed second for Theta Xi.

Hail the conquerors—Theta Chi's win first place in the fraternity division of our parade. Success balances expenses!

The bride comes in second for Pi Beta Phi.

Cheesecake and chicken wire . . .

Frozen cheesecake and upset apple-carts are the rule rather than the exception in that battle of feminine pulchritude commonly referred to as our Homecoming Parade.

Gamma Phi Beta scores a victory in the sorority division of our Homecoming Parade by "Going Dutch".

Chi O's, Sig Ep's, and TKE's "Drag-on to Victory" with their first place stunt show featuring a scintillating waltz.

Thin plots and worried casts . . .

The biggest stunt involved in putting on a stunt show is getting a show worth putting on. A constant idealistic striving for something new and different generally falls in the stereotyped pattern to which we are accustomed.

There was "Nothing Like A Dame" to the Gamma Phi's, AEPi's, and Sigs—third place.

An elaborate set and good clean livin'.

Leg make-up and lavish sets . . .

The calm, cool acceptance of a job haphazardly done with little or no school-provided materials contradicts the audience's impression of a professional-like show. The one time during the year when every student thinks he is an actor whether it be comic or tragical, trophy or not, still leaves us with pleasant remembrances of Stunt Show 1953.

Pi Phi's, Alpha Pi's, and Lambda Chi's enticed the second place awards into their respective trophy cases with their "Fantasy In Blues" take-off on the Kinsey Report.

Lecture Arts

Study hours and forty winks . . .

Chapel is that institution so familiar to all of us at Bradley. The formula for enjoyment extends from books blatantly displayed to nodding eyelids. Occasionally, however, we find ourselves listening with an inquisitive but silent attitude.

Piano wizardry humorously presented by James Welty captured considerable applause and uncommon encores.

"I disagree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it"—even if you do seem a little bit confused.

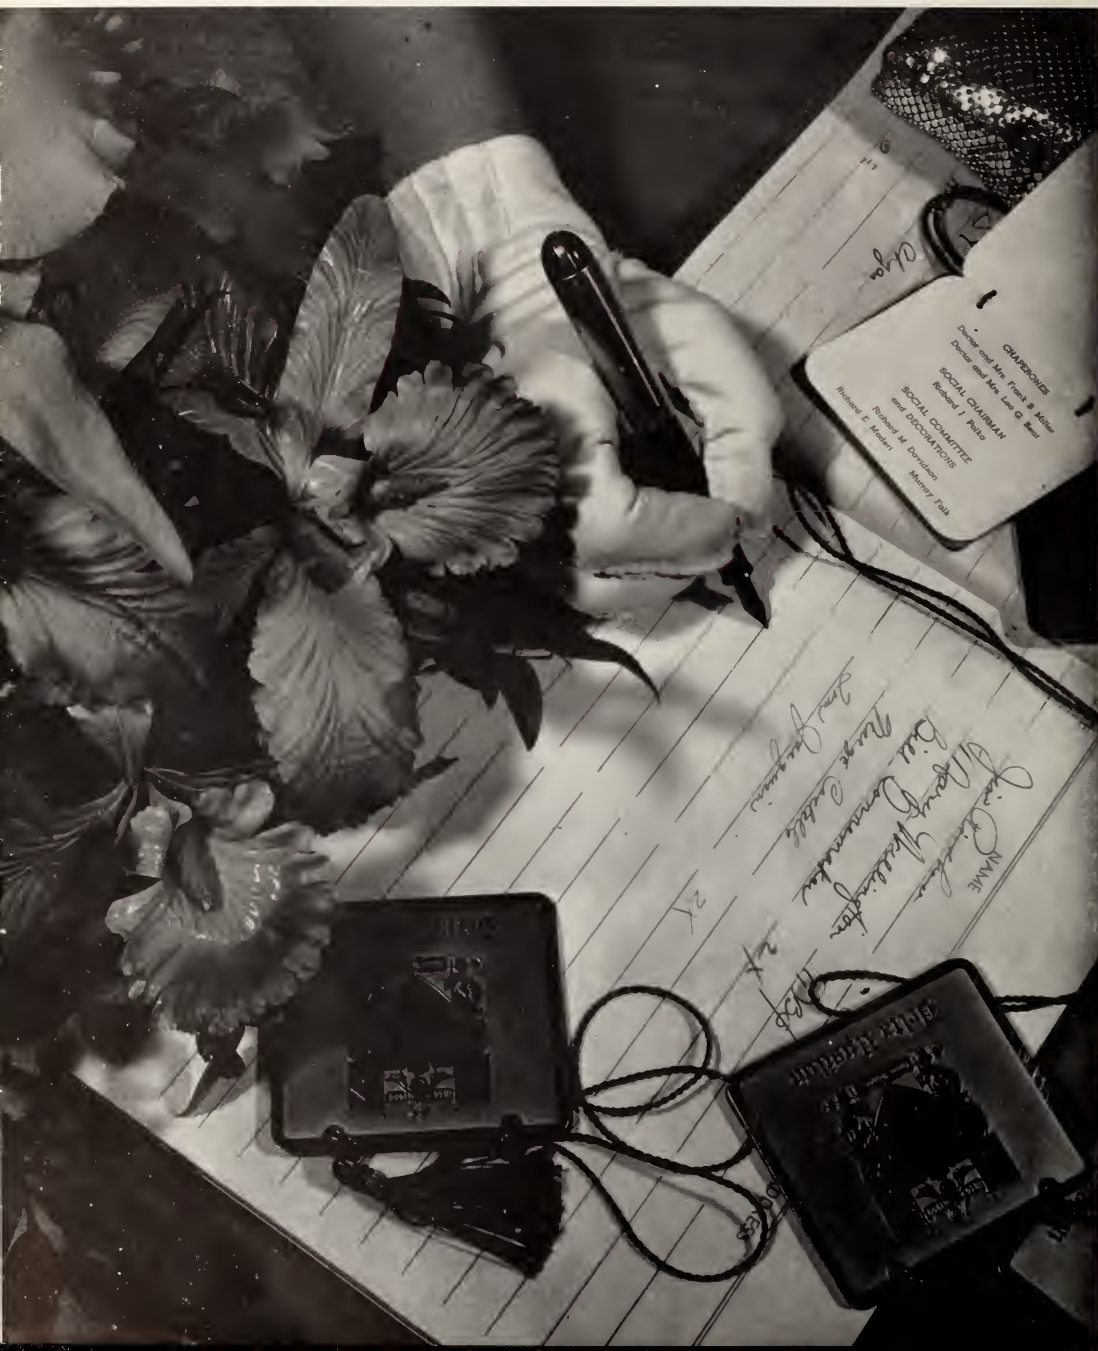

Our nation wide recognition began with the Sauter-Finnegan-Vaughan Monroe Camel Caravan, easily the most popular chapel program of the year.

Two of the greatest men in modern American music, Ed Sauter and Bill Finnegan, captivated a packed field-house with new modes of music.

Social Life

Flowers . . . formals . . . foolishness. The spokes of our campus life—parties are the hub.

No room for the narrow-minded . . .

Our less academic endeavors in actuality are the most important things to be found in our general college life. Classes are the door to a better life, but the key is found in learning to understand ourselves as well as others. Whether it be over a cup of coffee or a bottle of beer—philosophical discussions are ever-present.

Here we are, tomorrow's leaders, engaged in such pertinent world affairs as—well, you know.

When we Bradley students party, we spend our greatest effort in looking like we are having a good time.

Women are confusing, but definitely a required course.

She's at the 50, zig-zags to the 40, at the 30 she stops and turns—a whistle on the play!

To prove our rugged independence, we cut all thoughts of classes from our minds and head for Detweiler.

We strive to conform to those within our group; yet, glory in our moments of individualism.

Know him—I was pinned to him for two weeks.

Being children at heart, we like to imagine we are men.

Long-winded telephone conversations require king-
sized ashtrays.

Either Si's isn't open, or there's more to a watermelon party than meets the eye.

Gossip and cliques

and sex . . .

Conversation is claimed to be a lost art. But not to those of us who like to expound upon such things as next year's stunt show . . . From Here to Eternity . . . where to find requisitioned tests . . . the competitive sport of dating . . . cliques with the official view . . . Forddy's new fortress . . . local gossip . . . and the old favorite—sex.

Dances and parties are universal, but a pinning serenade belongs to only those of us who have fraternity brothers, a girl, and the inclination.

Intermissions offer a much needed opportunity for a cigarette, soft drink, and rest.

When basketball frenzied the campus in mid-March, wining, dining, and dancing became secondary to a portable.

Charcoal flannels and anything cashmere . . .

The modern college student eternally strives to be different: knee sox, muddied bucks, anything cashmere, charcoal flannels, a sophisticated drink, or expensive cigarette. We all play such silly little games, but too often we have to skimp on the inexpensive conventionalities of customary living.

We often wish that such transmuted gaiety of costume was more evident.

Rumor has it that Teepee coffee is now being insured by Lloyd's of London to protect its distinctive taste.

A winter formal is marked by black tuxedos and expensive flowers—plus end-of-the-month assessments.

Drama

Set, lights, and unhidden mikes . . .

Out of the darkness that covered the stage a single spot pin-pointed a paper ship on a painted ocean and "The Tempest" was under way. The demolition of the ship and subsequent devious deeds ended happily with hundreds thronging to see one of our University's first attempts at culture on a large scale. With paper trees and canvas mountains, the "unhidden microphones" could not destroy the illusion of beauty and grace that characterized one of the nation's largest Shakespearean presentations in recent years.

Modern sets, music, and dances . . .

Cramped rehearsals in the "old south attic" and performances on the spacious fieldhouse floor prove problematic to production. The second in our series of Spring Classics, "Much Ado About Nothing" was received with increasing success as our Shakespearean theatre seems here to stay.

Some new ideas and age-old competition . . .

In one of our charitable moments we stage our annual Campus Carnival. Each year brings a combination of new and old ideas as we search for the unusual to attract the multitudes. But even a spirit of charity fails to obliterate the competitive feeling we somehow can't escape.

Big bold fronts, astonishing exhibits, and entertainment for the young in heart prevail at Carnival time.

Campus Carnival—1953

"Foolish Frolics" seemingly originated about 1935 and has done 5,326 encores since—but we still enjoy seeing it.

The sign caught our attention—the ducks for prizes made a date a costly venture.

Carnival fever lures campus co-eds to endure almost anything—"for the house".

Greek Week—1953

---

An exhilarating spring evening, a girl in your arms, and an uncomfortably stiff shirt is the formula for spring formals.

Gamuna Phi Beta and Lambda Chi Alpha added to their trophy collections with the top awards in the 1953 Pan-Fra sing.

The outward symbol of closed friendships . . .

Although the pins may not be in evidence, we still belong to one big group known as Greeks—a great mass of practitioners engaging in similar actions. Having selection as a basis, we choose one week each spring for external relations—this is Greek Week. Until such time as sincere friendships shall illuminate the path of our Greeks, we will walk in the shadow of traditional opinion.

Some great athletes display their skills at the Olympic Games. We at Bradley have our own little games—all for the love of a trophy.

Graduation

Futures apart from college amusements . . .

Graduation means formality, ceremony, and expenses. We pretend that it is the biggest thing in our lives and know that it isn't. With Baccalaureate and Commencement, four years of college life are suddenly obliterated and the proximity of our futures becomes frightening. Chapels, classes, exams — the worries of college — give way to the deadening routine of the modern business world. The now-hardened graduate begins searching for security in an age of uncertainty. The military, a family, and taxes soon smother him in society and he finds himself far removed from Bradley and college amusements.

Traditions like the "Passing of the Torch" are a wonderful thing even if we do get a little impatient with them.

Chapel credit by candle-light . . .

Our ignored traditions will always flourish as long as there is a senior class to perpetuate them. As underclassmen, the only meaning we connect with the "Passing of the Torch" is the salvation of grade points by receiving badly needed chapel credits for holding candles in the windows of "B-Hall."

We don't have a daisy-chain or a garland of roses, but each of us will remember the torch passing and Honor's Day ceremonies as an aesthetic moment in our usual drab existences.

Honors Day Convocation—
where a few receive awards.
Most of us are there to applaud.

Trophy complexes, organized coalitions, bitter competition, and flairs for new fads dominate the lives of those among us who choose to be . . .

Chi Omega

X Ω

Majorettes and mixed emotions . . .

Behind the library stands the little white house — Chi Omega's center of activity. In their pine-panelled recreation quarters and newly decorated chapter room in the basement, the "majorettes" are sometimes heard harmonizing to the strains of "My One Chi O Girl." These "queens" often speculate about who set their homecoming float on fire, but still manage to bring home their share of trophies. To add to the excitement of finally hooking their man, the Chi O's hold clever candle-light services during which the lucky girl announces her conquest by snuffing out the candle. Always conscious of their proximity to the Lambda Chi house, there was considerable chapter excitement in finding a "Lambda Chi Annex" sign cemented in their front yard. But then, there is a rumor that some of the girls have mixed emotions about certain fraternities.

Candles create a mood at a regular Tuesday night spread as the Chi Omega's throw in a little atmosphere for their guests.

Cheese cake and milk are two of the favorite refreshments served during Chi O rushing parties.

Putting their hearts into flowers, the Gamma Phi's finally found a use for their basement.

Empty plates and rather forced smiles accompanied the Gamma Phi's big social event—their Annual Founders Day Banquet.

Sweeties and crescent moons . . .

Across the campus and through the alley stands the dark brown edifice known as the Gamma Phi Beta house. This "Home of the Brains" is not the only place the Gamma Phi's are found, however—it is commonly suspected they rent the library for an annex. But intelligence isn't their only liability; these "sweeties" still find time to come out dubious winners in the Pan-Fra Sing and somehow manage to produce top homecoming floats. In addition to the customary exchange parties, the Gamma Phi's entertained the Theta Chi's with an unusual "Prisoner's Party," complete with a den of iniquity, subpoena, and trials. Delving deep into Brownie Troop #2, they develop long-hidden talents to provide hilarious skits for rushing parties and often force the rest of the campus to witness them. On clear nights one can see many of the Gamma Phi's studying by the light of the crescent moon.

Pi Beta Phi

Space suits and Fort Knox . . .

The girls who proudly wear the Pi Phi arrow make the study-wearied lives of the men at the dorm more bearable. Between working on prize-winning stunt shows, they enjoy the usual and the unusual exchanges, particularly those with rhapsody-made entertainment. One of the largest sororities on campus, the Pi Phi's sponsor an annual Christmas formal and this year innovated the practice of holding the dance within their house. Under a sparkling white tree the guests discovered enticing packages which turned out to be rattles, space suits, and other useless objects d'arte. These girls from outer space, sometimes referred to as "men from Mars," come down to earth once each year for their traditional Powder Bowl game. Their strikingly different modern house, sometimes dubbed "Mortgage Manor," is better known as Bradley's "Fort Knox."

In the springtime, the Pi Phi's remember the fun of their Christmas Formal.

Thank goodness there is an occasional ring of the telephone to offer diversion from the Pi Phi social vacuum.

Two Sigma Kappa heads and four Sigma Kappa hands provide unusual college level entertainment.

An attempt at cafe society? At any rate, the Sigma Kappas feel this to be a worthwhile effort to impress rushees.

Muscles and feet on the railing . . .

Sigma Kappa sorority, continual winners of the Women's Athletic trophy, has reportedly revamped its semi-new home by adding locker rooms and dumbbells. Although the Sigma Kappas may claim to be interior decorators, they haven't found time to redecorate their basement into a usable recreation room and are easily embarrassed when reminded of their tea-cake faux-pas. "Hearts and Flowers" played on one of the most beautiful violins might well be a song for the Sig Kaps as a postlude to Homecoming. During the winter season they console themselves with exchanges featuring new and different party games. One of the most actively honest groups on campus, the Sigma Kappas fully believe in the feet-on-the-railing policy, and prove it by providing a comfortable front porch for wandering Theta Xi's who meander over.

Rummage sales and vespers . . .

The "Local Lodge," focal point of Delta Chi Delta sorority, is the scene of much activity during the school year. Now completing their third year on campus, they form a small, intimate group—but some people prefer small groups. The Delta Chi's stacked up their share of elbow-grease and grime during Homecoming when they had to hurriedly reconstruct their float as it fell apart on Main Street hill. The DCD's hold an annual rummage sale and use the proceeds to provide a party for the children of Friendship House. The strains of "Going Home" are sometimes intermixed with vesper services conducted by their Dean-like housemother, an ordained minister.

Ham, Si's, and a Go-to-Hell dance . . .

Alpha Epsilon Pi, the biggest little house on campus, finds pleasure in forgetting about school work to follow our varsity basketball team on road trips. Like all fraternity men, they are proud of their alums and enjoy seeing them—some of them every week-end. With their twenty-first birthdays, AEPi's are initiated into their exclusive AESi's club. Commonly termed as "social rebels", they "Go-to-Hell" in a big way at their annual dance of the same name. AEPi's enjoy partying at other fraternity functions more than their own, but always offer a return invitation to eat some of the famous Kosher style ham served at the AEPi house.

Nonchalantly dapper, still local . . .

Most fraternity men are proud of their deluxe costly convertibles, but the Alpha Pi's are proudest of that purple monstrosity they sincerely acclaim as the modern trend in automobiles and contend there's no Ford in their futures. During rushing they boast of their new annex and its juxtaposition to "Connie Hall", while munching on hot tamales from their newest annex, the "Weenie Wagon." Every week-end is a lost week-end for the Alpha Pi's who congregate after dorm hours to "close" the down town night spots. Alpha Pi is proud of its athletes and celebrates victories by scaring the hell out of sorority girls with a gigantic field piece. The biggest complaint heard among Alpha Pi's is that the "Tower of Babble" Music Building next door presents a notable discord to the harmony of the house. The men from 405 Bradley bemoan the dubious distinction of being the last of the "Old Guard" and swear they're going national.

Springtime and balmy days find the Alpha Pi's indulging in one of many local sports.

Winter formals are pleasant, but the Alpha Pi's eagerly await their annual Bum Dance—the most talked about Greek social event on campus.

With the meter box "out-of-sight-behind-the-big-chair", the DU's enjoy watching TV until it's time for another two-bits.

Two bosses for every job—the accepted formula for any fraternity work party.

Casual white hats and "Cal" . . .

Steeped in a tradition of good talent, the DU's failed for the first time in several years to walk off with top honors in the stunt show. Billed as a non-sective fraternity with everything open to the public, the DU's conduct chapter meetings that people clamor to go to. With their Arabian Nights party and their casual white hats, the DU's add a touch of the unusual to Bradley fraternity life. Their biggest socializing of the year occurs when their favorite alum, "Cal", returns for a fabulous week-end of Greenwich Village in Peoria. With television in their front room and the Western Tap only a few blocks away, Delta Upsilon brothers have little difficulty in finding plenty of diversion from their college cares. The most recent of Bradley fraternities to go national, the DU's soon acquired a "chartered" reputation with their national and often long for the old Rho Delta days when executive directors were unheard of.

Key chains and a trophy annex . . .

The Bradley Avenue "Hawks" broke the all-time fraternity grade point record during the first semester with an over-all average of 5.42. The curve-wreckers strengthened their claim on this title by winning the scholarship trophy for the umpteenth time. Lambda Chi's still worry and wonder who laid the cornerstone for the LCA Annex across the street, but boast about the performances of the "Foolish Frolics" with their neighbors, the Glenwood Beauts. Jam sessions interlace their study-filled hours and a red-hot combo provides amusing entertainment at exchange parties. Although public relations is not one of their specialties, public speaking is and the brothers take pride in wearing key chains and distinctive hats to maintain their individuality. Successful scholastically, socially, and athletically, the LCA's expanded the customary trophy case into a trophy room and are now considering a trophy annex.

Introductions and friendly acknowledgements are always a necessity at social affairs.

As newly-named ping pong champs, Lambda Chi's now claim ample justification for those many afternoons away from the books.

PiKA's discover that owning a pup means a lot of scrubbing—both inside and out.

Warm weather calls for convertibles and a car wash to lure the campus chicks.

Big blasts and a pool parlor . . .

Approaching 101 North University, we see the PiKA house and hear the strains of "When the Saints Go Marching In", be-bop, and drinking songs. The PiKA basketball quintet holding practice sessions on the nearby pint-sized barbershop court, reputedly entered in the National Biddy-Basketball Tournament. They often congregate around the fireplace that displays their knack for winning trophies from other schools. The brotherhood is marked by complete freedom, friendliness, and philosophical discussions—about bigger and better blasts. A French-themed house party, a top-notch bowling team, and their annual spring dance highlighted PiKA activities during the year. Although they miss their old neighbors, the Sigs, the proximity of the local ice cream and pool parlors more than makes up for the absence of "Roy" and the "White Cross".

Errant pledges and bird-dogging . . .

Despite the actions of their mischievous pledges, who terrorized the campus for almost a semester, the Sigs managed to retain the high standing of their predecessors. Their two houses help keep our varsity basketball team in condition as they run from the television and sleeping house to the other house, the cafeteria. They daily practice for the bird-dogging trophy awarded annually to the Sig making the fastest time between Si's and 12:30 hours. Most of the Sigs will long remember painting their Greek symbols on the Pi Phi's football uniforms and their half-time entertainment at the Powder Bowl. Their football game with LCA was better attended by the faculty than most Bradley home games. Even though the Sigma Chi's no longer have the complete domination of interfraternity athletics they once had, we must all remember we each have our own little cross to bear.

Recorded music and television shows in the annex help to justify the Sigma Chi parlor tax.

Sleep in the Sig house is conventional—at any time, in any position, under any conditions.

The Carousel room, newest of good dance spots, provided the Sig Eps with an unforgettable Christmas dance and a deflated bank account.

Skeptical as we like to appear, magic hath its charms — wish we could say there were no strings attached.

Drum sticks and a telephone pole . . .

Located behind a well-placed telephone pole on St. James, the Sig Eps opened the fall semester with a surprisingly fast start, despite their obvious growing pains. Acquiring a spacious new trophy case, the brothers vowed to begin trying to fill it. After fairing well in the stunt show, scholarship, and I-F football, the men of Sigma Epsilon apparently slackened their pace to give the other fraternities a chance. Not to be out-done during the Christmas season, the Sig Eps impressed the campus by decorating their house with enough art work to cover B-Hall. They own the largest mascot on campus—a 200 pound St. Bernard monster—that reportedly has all the campus dogs in an uproar. Known as the “house with a heart,” the Sig Eps prepared 70 chicken dinners during second semester rush and ended up eating drum sticks for the next two weeks.

Isolationists and explanations . . .

The TKE's and their "big house" were apparently up the river when they had to borrow a row-boat to get somewhere in Homecoming, but their efforts only cost them the price of an orchid every week. Now that they've completed installing such modern conveniences as plumbing and refinished woodwork, the TKE's are becoming reconciled to their obvious lack of "Elbo-room." Tau Kappa Epsilon pledges have hurried explanations for the sexsational entertainment they provided the Pi Phi's, but still assert that "pledging Tau Kappa Epsilon is paradise!" Isolationists to the campus, the TKE's take advantage of their barn-like home to stage fabulous house parties and chapter basketball games in their front room. TKE's are known for their all day picnics, their all night dances, and their all out efforts—to stay off social pro.

With several aces up their sleeves, the TKE's claim to be a versatile organization.

Occasional rehearsals for the Pan-Fra Sing and impromptu harmonizing around the house keep the TKE's in shape for the Highway.

Horsing around via mutual skirmishes of wit is often the only scheduled activity of the TC's.

A phone call at the Theta Chi house becomes an ordeal when four kibitzers start adding to the conversation.

Floor space and secret desires . . .

Bradley's Theta Chi chapter bears the infamous distinction of being the only fraternity on social probation this year, even though the result of their requisitioning excursion was somewhat offset by a trophy in the float parade. Obviously care-free, the Theta Chi's possess a cracker-box house complete with dirty sidewalks, smeared windows, and a backyard filled with secret desires. Weekday shuffleboard games and week-end apartment parties are the lot of the Theta Chi's, who go all out for serenades, short meetings, and trips to the Highway. Idiotic nick-names and little games of wit fill their hours around the house with plenty of boisterous laughter. The primary prerequisites for pledging on Elmwood sometimes seem to be an active interest in pinochle, a willingness to sit on the floor, and a cultivated tolerance of an uninhibited dog.

Theta Xi

Cuckoo clocks and suede shoes . . .

Although not at the top of the interfraternity sports standings, Theta Xi's make their presence felt as they boast, "We don't win 'em all, but anyone we play knows they've been in a game!" With a large number of varsity grid men to draw from and with their neighbors to the east providing practice matches, Theta Xi's copped second place laurels in I-F wrestling. When the men in blue don their symbolic "Chi town" attire, of suede shoes, bowed-collar shirts, and casually draped suits, they flaunt a touch of the Windy City upon the rank and file of Peoria. Traditions such as their Roaring Twenties party and the announcement of their Lounge Lizard couple highlight Theta Xi social events. In Homecoming parade competition, the Theta Xi's "cuckooed" their way into second place among fraternities, but had less success with a stunt show that was strictly for the birds.

Clean-up for fall rushing is misery—Theta Xi's find the night-life relaxation far more to their liking.

Fortunately bunny hopping—a favorite campus activity—gives us something to do at exchange parties.

Omega Psi Phi

Meetings in the Men's Dorm . . .

Using the lounge for a chapter room, the Huddle for dining facilities, and the recreation room for relaxation, Omega Psi Phi's claim the New Men's Dormitory as the largest fraternity house on campus. Limited in membership and handicapped by the lack of a house, the Omega Psi Phi's avidly participate in I-F competition and anxiously look forward to their first I-F title. They find their biggest problem in getting dubious Sig Ep's to acknowledge that Omega Psi Phi is one of the largest national fraternities in existence.

When away from their studies, Omega Psi Phi's spend a lot of time vowing to improve their scholarship rating.

Alpha Kappa Psi

Neon signs and self-control . . .

With a new home, a neon sign, and a new lease on social life, AKPsi members jumped headlong into fraternity life and came up knee-deep in debt. Confronted by additional problems of self-control at every turn, the professional business fraternity of Bradley fought unceasingly to survive first-year pitfalls. With the Campus Carnival and second semester rush, however, the AKPsi's proved they were more than a flash-in-the-pan and looked forward to better years ahead.

In unfamiliar surroundings, Alpha Kappa Psi's spent the year trying to make a professional group social.

ORGANIZATIONS

Departmental Honoraries

Alpha Delta

No Steinbecks or Hemingways are in their number, but club members have similar interests in the field of journalism. These would-be artists of literary technique seldom socialize but find great delight in admiring their by-lines in the Scout or Anaga. Their haven is the publications building and they live in fear of the circular file.

Row 1: Patricia McAdams, Dr. Sue Maxwell, Mary Wellington.
Row 2: Jack Milne, Gilbert Gordon, Alan Lisle, Willis Tribler.

Sigma Alpha Eta

A desire to help the handicapped is a necessary characteristic of any member of Sigma Alpha Eta. These students who have chosen the field of speech correction or hearing as their vocation gain valuable experience by active participation in this group. An opportunity to work with children possessing speech and hearing defects offers them practical training in this particular field.

Row 1: Dr. Mawhinney, Jane Mead, Mary Jeanne Lindsey, Mary Maher, Patricia Holt.
Row 2: Roger Bastian, Joyce Gibbons, Marilyn Flynn, Thomas Broderick.
Row 3: Henry Greve, Thomas Cullinan, Fran Stred.

Row 1: Martha Samuelson, Betty Hedden, Phyllis Bettinghaus.
Row 2: Ronald McKinney, Thomas Fricano.

Row 1: Norma Neff, Dr. Yates, Patricia Althaus.
Row 2: Dr. Boyd, Eugene Askenasy.

Delta Phi Delta

A palette and brush plus a keen interest in art equals a member of Delta Phi Delta. Jeans and sweat-shirts replace the traditional smocks and French berets of these future artists. During Homecoming, they combine their talents to produce the murals on the windows of the fieldhouse foyer, and in the spring, they reach creative extremes at the Beaux Arts Ball.

Phi Alpha Theta

Phi Alpha Theta members "eat, drink, and sleep" history. Living more in the past than in the present as far as their studies go, they concentrate on memorizing important dates — of one variety or another. Students who have done outstanding work in history are eligible for membership in this organization.

Row 1: Richard Nelson, William McCarty, William Hongland, Walter Babcock, Robert Woods.

Row 1: Dolores Lukachko, Alberta Daniels, Judy Graham, Charlotte Lang.

Row 2: Polly Storm, Donna Pflederer, Eleanor Ehlen, Jody Rahn, Dorene Parkinson, Marion Rithmiller.

Row 3: Sunny Christiansen, Marjorie Day, Barbara Corn, Marianne Ringe, Nancy Tarpley, Cecile Beed, Maxine Carey.

Sigma Alpha Iota

Although some SAI sisters find it enjoyable to flaunt their abilities during dorm quiet hours, they nevertheless turn out several tremendous musical programs each year. Enjoying the late fall evenings, rush-ees were entertained at a hot dog and marshmallow roast, as Sigma Alpha Iota presented their fall rushing program.

Phi Mu Alpha

Anything from ragtime and jazz to Beethoven and Mozart is included in the Phi Mu's choice of music. Their fifteen piece dance band is available for many social functions. Playing for the Stunt Show and practicing for their concert occupies most of their time; however, in their spare minutes, they manage to congregate in the music building or Kenney's for a session—jam or otherwise.

Pi Gamma Mu

Pi Gamma Mu members indulge in periodic discussions over vital issues in the field of social science. Under the austere surveyance of Dr. Wyck-off, the learned students of society air their views on such timely topics as city planning and birth control—in the interests of world betterment, of course.

Pi Kappa Delta

This group, which promotes fluent speaking, oddly enough thrives on the comparatively silent leadership of Dr. Norton. Many of their members serve on the varsity debate team and spend long week ends traveling about the country in search of trophies. This year they concentrated on achieving moral victories and were encouraged to “gain experience.”

Row 1: Nancy Herriman, Mrs. John Hoffman, Jean Risen.
Row 2: C. N. Patterson, Dr. Eunne, Faculty Advisor, Joseph Zaba, Eugene Askenasy, Dr. Yates.

Row 1: Jack Gillespie, Nancy Herriman, Lowell Beck.
Row 2: Mr. Nebergall, Dr. Norton, William Boege, Eugene Askenasy.

Row 1: Ronald Jaicomo, James Huhta, Peter Bardezbanian.
Row 2: Robert O'Farrell, Harold Wirth, Joseph Zaba.

Zeta Pi

As recipients of the President's Service Cup, these young men carried on a tradition of campus prominence begun in 1925 by Dean Tillotson. Jim Huhta, "international president" of this local group, conducts monthly meetings at which the members concentrate on "getting down to business."

Beta Tau Epsilon

Brushing the sawdust from their clothes, members now and then retreat from Duryea Hall long enough to congregate on the steps for a cigarette. For the further enlightenment of their worthy members, Beta Tau Epsilon sponsors movies and lectures and has occasional field trips on its agenda.

Row 1: James Clarke, Ralph Anderson, Kenneth Okano, Clyde Yoshioka, Donald Rauber.
Row 2: Paul Bosse, Douglas Bowers, Robert Seifert, Gerald Somers, William Weerts, John Hirst.

Tau Sigma

The Tau Sigs must prefer to hold their meetings in the cellar of Holmes Hall for we seldom see them on campus. They claim the light of their life is a slide rule and a supersonic surveying compass. And all of them staunchly vow they'll never forget the day they swallowed a slide rule in one gulp as a part of their peculiar initiation ritual.

Theta Alpha Phi

With grease paint covering the bags under their eyes and stage-struck members vying for the spotlight, the Theta Alpha Phi's attempted to present "Blithe Spirit." Most of the members are dedicated to drama, whether it be good or bad, and delight in displaying their talents in classes, dorms, and to the general public.

Row 1: Edwin Stear, Eugene Schroeder, William Sheffer.

Row 2: Chester Strantz, Roger Stevens, Alvin Polich, Jerre Lauterback, John Peterson.

Row 1: Joanne Endres, Marianne Ringe, Suelinda Hatfield.

Row 2: Michael Cody, Milton Hamberg, Gene Holmes, Mr. Dybvig.

Beta Beta Beta

Our photogs pictorially record Bradley life with Gil Gordon as supervisor. Both scholastically and photographically adept, the BBB's spend numerous hours artistically decorating their developing room like a Varga art gallery.

Row 1: Richard Noon, Donald Brooks.

Row 2: Kenneth Musker, Jerry Peterson, William Doty, Gilbert Gordon.

Alpha Phi Omega

The APO's often lose more friends than they gain by ushering at chapels; nevertheless, they perform a valuable service to the university. In addition, they sponsor a food drive for the needy at Christmas. Membership is limited to former Boy Scouts.

Row 1: Albert Kellerstrass, Ernst Kellerstrass, E. J. Ritter, Robins Hawthorne.

Row 2: William Weyeneth, Steven Kasza, Milton Blake, James Gaw, Arthur Lepley.

Row 3: Michael Armstrong, Jerry Peterson, Michael Allar, John Lindquist, Thomas Hicks, Kenneth Hawthorne.

Phi Sigma Pi

With the standard of high grades and even higher goals, the small number of members of this group rarely meet unless it's for initiation ceremonies. Looking extremely serious and intellectual, the Phi Sigma Pi's are dedicated to a college education, wherever it may be.

Row 1: Peter Bardezbauian, Clyde Yoshioka.

Row 2: Kenneth Okano, Gerald Somers, Ray Hancock.

Row 3: Kermit Johnson, Robert Barnhart, Joseph Zaba.

Clubs

Ad and Sell Club

Once a month Murphy's Restaurant is honored by the membership of the Ad and Sell Club. The would-be salesmen and advertising men listen to talks by experts from the business field and enjoy the door prizes which are donated by businessmen. Presiding over the dinner meetings is President Ron Trimble.

Home Economics Club

With ladle in hand and aprons and white uniforms as standard costume, the Home Ec gals concentrate on the culinary arts. Recipes, home decoration, and the proverbial "stitch in time saves nine" form the basis for the co-eds' futures as happy homemakers.

Row 2: Margie Schaechter, Laureine Johnson, Connie King, Coronella Adams, Lynn Johnson, Adele Ullmer, Marlene Isgren, Eve Gaymont, Marilyn Sittou, Lila Rashid, Lois Comstock, Mae Shiba, Martha Neis.

Row 3: Donna Wilcoxson, Lois Bacon, Patricia Berg, Lynn Pivour, Margie Leonard, Connie Chaney, Nancy Ringham, Jane Pulliam, Barbara Bitting, Ceile Beel, LaVerne Carlson, Marian Farris, Jean Ladley.

Row 4: Ann McCall, Beth Wright, Virginia Kaufmann, Ramona Kidd, Loretta Wasi, Billie Gorham, Joanne Chant, Karen Backman, Jeanette Mosir, Marilyn Opseth, Doris Davie, Nancy Brounsteader.

Row 5: Mary Jean Thompson, Beverly Bradley, Mary Kay Guinan, Bernie Marme, Joanne Abernathy, Janet Grimm, Joyce Pottorf, Carol Robertson, Alice Crisp, Ann Gibson.

Row 1: Norma Dixon, Mary Bullman, Ann McCall, Nancy Bronstender, Margie Schaechter, Lynn Pivour, Lorraine Dellman, Sandra Herman, Laureine Johnson, Mary Carrigan, Billie Gorham.
Row 2: Earle Frye, Mary Bell, Beverley Nothaus, Nancy Ringham, Betty Milliron, Annette Erickson, Carol Scott, Janice Gerster, Patricia Woodruff, Gloria Snedden, Barbara Baner, Ronald Trimble, Charles Ristich.
Row 3: Robert Fiedler, Harold Turley, William Flynn, Jack Wilkins, Ronald Billerbeck, Donald Taft, Kenneth Cecil, Walter Wichold, William Doerr, Harold Sieber, Mr. G. Tupper.

Future Teachers of America

Seeking to disprove that "those who can't do, teach," the members of the FTA join together to prepare themselves for a teaching career. Their chief objective is to raise the standards of the educational field and to increase teachers' salaries.

Row 1: Marilyn Mehl, Jean Risen, Jeanne Scheidt, Marilyn Delpire, Arlene Maynard, Shirley Imes.

Row 2: Nancy Bronsteader, Hazel Carlton, Lill Abegg, Richard Nordstrom, Joyce Stribling, Anne Swedell, Ann Hess.

Row 3: Dr. Miller, Douglas Bowers, Connie Chamey, Patricia Shawgo, Ann Boyd, Gayle Flesher, William Weerts, Frank Buchert.

Row 4: Delbert Hulman, Garth Knobelock, Paul Bossee, John Gudgel, John Spring, George Iben, Robert Zesiger, Adolph Walncavage.

Hawaiian Club

A shy but loyal friendliness emanates from the smiling faces of Hawaiian Club members. Their wide range of common interests insures successful parties and social functions, such as a Christmas party in the Wigwam and an Oriental dinner — both replete with orchids, leis, and hula dancers.

Row 1: Charles Lau, Martha Lau, Ella Wada, Margaret Godinez.

Row 2: Morio Morihara, Yosiharu Nakashima, Danny Kam, Lloyd Yamato, King Quon.

Row 3: Clyde Yoshioka, Stanley Togikawa, Paul Shinseki, Kenneth Okano.

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club members adopted a new theme song this year — "Granada." Even though the membership is limited, our amigos prefer socializing with a quick rhumba and a tasty tamale to studying Spanish verbs.

Row 1: Doris Sender, Linda Best, Elise Segroves, Patricia Anderson.

Row 2: Louis Ceja, Manuel Almeida, Truda Cooling, Kenneth Cann, Earl Rossman.

English Club

The forty members of the English Club regard themselves as the only active literary group on campus. They are concerned with discussions on current plays, plans for their trip to Chicago, and the best method of encouraging better attendance at the Varsity Art Theatre.

Row 1: Nancy McCool, Mary Hurst, Gloria Grote, Carol Henry.

Row 2: Mary Wehmeir, Carol Ferris, Milton Hamberg, Marilyn Mehl, Mary Johnson.

Row 3: Annette Erickson, Rosalie Landsman, Lois Stiarwalt, Jeanne Nelson, Truda Cooling.

Secretarial Club

The future secretaries of the business world join in the Secretarial Club to expand their interests and professional techniques. Their activities during the year were a rummage sale, lectures on office practices, and monthly meetings with free door prizes.

Row 1: Nancy Dergins, Janet Lang, Catherine Newman, Patricia Berg.

Row 2: Patricia Powley, Joanne Hewitt, Margaret Franceway, Lynn Hartenberger, Marietta Swartz, Sharon Franke.

Row 3: Maxine Carey, Connie Welch, Elise Segroves, Miss Smith, Carol Souhrada, Shirley Campbell.

Row 1: Sally Erikson, Catherine Newman, Marilyn Paulsen, Marilyn Leininger, Lynette Ackerman.

Row 2: William Gand, John Maggio, Peter Bardezbanian, Mr. E. Kennedy Cobb, John Wolford, Robert Mazurek.

Row 3: Kenneth Hollmann, Spero Balaskas, Robert Ahlgrim, Harold Wirth, Kenton Hancock.

Association of Accountancy

Considering themselves connoisseurs of drink and chicken dinners at the Sazarac, members listened to many opinions before deciding that the Intermediate Accounting text was really their dish. This year the club has headed by Ken Hollmann and Mr. E. Kennedy Cobb.

Radio Guild

Directed by Mr. Vander Heyden, Bradley's would-be artists of radio writing and acting held their meetings in the elite penthouse of "B" Hall. They strive for high standards in radio production and technique, but often accomplish only a relaxing evening of socializing.

Row 1: Joanne Endres, Barbara Harding, Jane Cooper, Mary Ellen Richert.
 Row 2: Michael Cody, Ronald Roberts, Suelinda Hatfield, Marianne Ringe, Wallace Gair, Ralph Brown.
 Row 3: Mr. Vander Heyden, Mr. Dybwig, Gene Holmes, William Ireland, Milton Hamberg, Guy Anderson.

American Society of Mech. Engineers

Anticipating the tours of the Le Tourneau Company and Caterpillar Company, members hold regular monthly meetings at which discussions are held on various new developments. Not to be out done by other organizations, the members plan to perfection their annual spring dance.

Row 1: John Clarno, Ralph Ferre, Lee DeBoer, Eugene Schroeder.
 Row 2: John Rannocho, Robert Bodine, Garth Jones, Lawrence Bass.
 Row 3: Carl Larson, Gerald Tallackson, Herschell Bottrell.

Society of Auto Engineers

The future of the automotive industry lies in the hands of these energetic, capable young men. Wiping the grease from their hands, they perambulate about on field trips, to lectures, and to technical forums. The modernistic vehicle of tomorrow may well spring from the lessons learned at Bradley University.

Row 1: Richard Heintzman, William Sheffer, Robert Hecker, Dale Magnuson, Robert Mendez.
 Row 3: Arthur Blank, Hugo Jenrath, Ralph Timmerman, Albert Speck, Earl Krueger, Robert McCumber, Paul Wetzel.

American Society of Civil Engineers

Through the minute lens of a transit, the way of the world is seen by the civil engineer. He is often found on campus with his tripod and transit, in the process of surveying the Women's Dorm and other points of interest, keeping in mind the motto, "Always be prepared and look for the best."

Row 1: Albert Kellerstrass, Norman Sautra, William Sheffer, Robert Mendez, Melvin Luke.

Row 2: James Gunion, James Rockow, Ernst Kellerstrass, Leslie Cowan.

Row 3: Steve Kasza, Clifford Rugh, Earl Krueger, Robert McCumber, Ralph Brooks.

Industrial Engineers Club

Motor oil, sawdust, and civic problems are all combined as Engineering students unite themselves for the purpose of furthering their education outside textbooks and stiff-back chairs. Monthly, members fraternize at meetings and stags.

Row 1: Lawton Mueller, Gino Giorgi, Vernon Zuolsky.
Row 2: John Plink, Jerry Tallackson, John Price, Orlo Oberlander.

Row 3: Robert Smith, James Fletcher, Francis Mer-gen, Phillip Falsen.

American Chemical Society

Test tubes, new formulas, and Einstein's theory might well be the methods these chemistry majors use in exploring new fields of mathematics. But more often they stain their fingers in the process of thumbing through the monthly chemistry magazines: Pogo, Mad, and Little Audrey.

Row 1: Linneaus Dorman, Robert Ritzman, Irene Mrotz, Ralph Nibbelin.

Mask and Gavel

This group of over-worked actors claims to have one of the largest treasuries on campus. Most of their time is spent establishing new methods of spending their money and blindly plunging from one rehearsal to another.

Row 1: Mary Ellen Richert, Virginia Dawson, Jane Cooper, Barbara Harding, Joanne Endres.

Row 2: Ronald Roberts, Wallace Gair, Marianne Ringe, Suelinda Hatfield, Ralph Brown, Michael Cody.

Row 3: Mr. Dybvig, Roger Lair, Gene Holmes, Milton Hamberg.

Nadi El Wah'da

People from all parts of the globe may meet at a gathering of this group. Although limited in geographic scope and scale, they strive to develop better relationships between Bradley students representing different nations of the world.

Row 1: Clark Lambropoulos, Joanne Endres, Doris Sender, Vera Zyzniuskaja, John Beth. Row 2: Marianne Ringe, Dolores Nelson, Mae Sheba, Emily Ting, Doris Davies, Jackie Houghton.

Row 3: Linneaus Dorman, Eleanor Olroth, Grace Sineni, Dolores Chapman, Norma Paine, Haruo Taga, Walter Wiebold.

Row 4: Kee-Shun Wai, Samuel Ng, Manuel Almeida, Rolf Hackman, Stephen Cheng, Richard Cheng.

Independents

The Independents can always be found gathered around a table in the Teepee discussing the latest news. They further their non-Greek affiliations on campus by striving to develop a stronger Independent organization—and have been increasingly successful.

Row 1: Grace Sineni, Lucy Vitale, Edith Dunn, Catherine Newman, Coronella Adams, Shirley Tonsie.

Row 2: Mary Jakoby, Vera Schiatter, Betty Schmidt, Gloria Cacciatori, Joyanne Vachout, Karen Beckman, Dolores Chapman, Adele Ullmer, Janet Lang, Mary Kisel, Jackie Houghton.

Row 3: Mr. E. Kennedy Cobb, John Wolford, Eleanor Olroth, Georgia Cutler, Martha Nessler, Marilyn Opseth, Marilyn Frank, Bessie Luster, Annette Martin, Harold Sieber, Garth Knochelek.

Row 4: Leonard Kopp, Ernest Patrick, Ronald Sarlito, John Clarno, Jerry Crawford, Robert Gleckler, Richard Eichelkraut, Bernard Katz, Earl Frye, John Schmidt, Kenneth Cann.

Y. W. C. A.

Displaying hospitality and warm-hearted friendliness, YWCA members greet each semester's incoming students at Freshman mixers. The organization claims motives of "service to the university" in the formulation of their other varied projects during the remainder of the year.

Row 1: Joan Hamilton, Nancy Newman, Pauline Storm, Shirley Grubb.

Row 2: Marilyn Delpire, Truda Cooling, Barbara Jurim, Bessie Potesanos, Barbara Krueger.

Row 3: Patricia Woodruff, Lynn Hartenberger, Margaret Collister, Jean Scheidt, Betty Schmidt, Carol Robertson.

Y. M. C. A.

The members of this organization claim world-wide membership and worthwhile functions as their creed. Specifically, at Bradley, they attempt to promote better student-faculty relations, adjust the processing of incoming freshmen, and provide wholesome recreation for all.

Row 1: Augustus Kwabi, Ronald Billerbeck, William Flynn, Harold Mazurek.

Row 2: Dr. Emme, Mr. Jackman, John Schmidt, Robert Mazurek, Mr. C. N. Patterson.

Row 3: John Beth, James Carius, Warren Willems, Alan Lisle, George Knaeding.

Row 1: Richard Drury, Stanley Loula, William Doerr, Max Warren, Kenneth Cecil, Walter Wiebold.

Row 3: Rudolph Kotas, Harold Stutzenstein, Harold Sieber, Mr. Kalmou Goldberg, John Beck, James Kosmond.

Row 4: John Riordau, William Prather, Robert Eertmoed, Melvin Berlin, Joseph Zaba, John Mihok.

Economics Club

Economic students changed their major long enough to become experts in outdoor advertisement as the one hundred percent male membership of this newly organized club accosted the sidewalks of Bradley with whitewash and chalk to attract attention. Evidently their method of publicity was a success as the club blossomed into a prominent B.U. organization.

Bradley Wives

Knitting stockings and scrimping for their husband's tuition occupies most of the Bradley wives' time. They often socialize while their husbands quench their thirst for knowledge. The night before a big test, they can be found burning the midnight oil with their spouses.

Row 1: Loretta Philips, Phyllis Wolfe, Patricia Bachman, Joan Chandler.
Row 2: Kay Gasper, Mickey Farrar, Elizabeth King, Gene Zaba, Mary Bass, Domicella Hayes.

Pre-Med Club

A stethoscope, a white jacket, and a degree are the fondest dreams and hopes of every pre-med student. The world of medicine has left its traces in their language and living habits. They rarely forget they are med students.

Row 1: Helen Goertz, Ellen Pierson, Sharon Feeney, Mary Wehmeir.
Row 2: Jeanne Nelson, Dolores Parks, Jan Saville, Rhea Appenzeller, John Schmidt.
Row 3: John Johnson, Mandel Buchbinder, Lawrence Grant, Theodore Cohen, Harold Mazurek.

Psi Delta Omega

This professional horology fraternity keeps things ticking at Bradley while maintaining a constant watch over the campus, especially the Tepee. They spend most of their time in the horology building but seem to disappear at the day's end.

Row 1: Jan Gluba, Robert Russell, Chester Howard, Rodney Baum.
Row 2: Robert Seklek, Robert Mundt, William Jennings, Darold Salbrig, Francis Kantner, Fred Byland.
Row 3: Richard Hook, Hurley Bumgardner, Michael Verble, Inaeter Bischoff, Clarence Ferzier, Joe Sears, Gene Alvoid.

Religion Clubs

Gamma Delta

Lutheran students on campus are given a chance to become acquainted during the many activities which Gamma Delta sponsors. Once a month they get together for an evening of religious inspiration and social activity.

Row 1: Walter Wiebold, David Stratton, Dr. Frank Miller, Ernst Kellerstrass.

Bradley Christian Fellowship

This religious group welcomes every Bradley student into its ranks. As a non-denominational, non-sectarian organization, they endeavor to promote unity on campus by sponsoring a variety of social events during the year.

Row 1: Donald Pihl, Ruth Yerby, Shirley Polhemus, Gwen Verdoes.

Row 2: Robert Kanagy, Gordon Biggar, John Schmidt, Frank Buchert, Richard Walker, John Teasdale, John Hirst.

Row 3: Lawrence Hahn, Charles Lewis, George Kaeding, John Scherer, Gerald Peacock, Richard Nyström, Loren Dodd.

Newman Club

As a member of the National Federation of Newman Clubs, Bradley's chapter offers a varied program of religious, social, and current subjects for all Catholic students. Throughout the school year, they sponsor many activities in the interests of their members.

Row 1: Loretta Wasil, Catherine Newman, Mary Kisel, Colleen Gregg, Marilyn Paulsen, Gay Shaffer, Margie Schaechter, Dolores Chapman, Marcia Lev, Linda Best.

Row 2: Virginia Kaufmann, Mary Hurst, Rosemarie Pfeffer, Vera Zyznienskaja, Irene Mrotz, Peggy Hurst, Norma Paine, Grace Sineni, Mary Kay Guinan, LaVerne Carlson, Gloria Cacciatore.

Row 3: John Maggio, Dale Magness, Joseph Skyles, Dominic Giacomini, Marva Jedd, Eleanor Oloroth, Dennis Busch, Harold Mazurek, Earl Frye, John Rannocho.

Row 4: Chester Zielinski, Ronald Sarlito, Jay Freres, Linus Heinz, Charles Jones, James Clarke, Thomas Cullinan, Wayne Cheramy.

The memories of a freshman beanie and that first college class are easily forgotten as doing something "different" becomes the stock of all . . .

Junior Class Officers: Peter Bent, President; Barry Kautz, Vice-President; Willa Sue Sitton, Secretary; Jack Crebs, Treasurer.

Premature advocates of the senior slump . . .

Finally tagged as upperclassmen, the juniors have the privilege of paying dues and legally attending the Jr-Sr Prom. What else do they do? Impress the freshmen with exaggerated importance, party, do the minimum of studying necessary to stay in school, party, cut classes more than ever before, party, and prepare themselves to develop the senior characteristics for next year's slump.

Congratulations

—the key to your future

Ben Franklin used his key . . . and paved the way for the many modern conveniences we enjoy today with electricity.

The degrees or diplomas you receive are your keys to apply your learning in an adult practical world. Use your key well . . . that graduates in the years to follow may benefit from the better society you will have helped create.
